Description

On the top floor of an elevator-served building in Agioi Omologites, this fully furnished apartment takes in a city view across its 110 square meters of internal space. Three bedrooms and one bathroom are arranged along the eighth floor, where the height gives the rooms a clear line of sight over the surrounding rooftops. The building dates to 1973 and was renovated in 2026, pairing the original structure with an updated interior finish.

Agioi Omologites is a district within Nicosia, Cyprus's capital, which sits inland on the island's central plain. The area's built fabric is a mix of mid-century apartment blocks and newer infill, typical of Nicosia's inner residential districts, with shops and everyday services woven into the neighborhood itself rather than set apart from it. Living here means being part of the city's ordinary daily rhythm rather than its outer edge.

Uncovered parking available.
